Name of Event: COVID- Current Future and Challenges (Guest Lecture)

Venue: Online Mode

Link: <https://kluniversity.webex.com/meet/cr036>

Date: February 18, 2023; Time: 3.00 PM to 5 PM

No. of students Participated: 85

Objective of the event:

To sensitise the students about the importance of COVID and its Current Future and Challenges

Description of event

The webinar "COVID- Current Future and Challenges" offered a comprehensive examination of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, its current status, future projections, and associated challenges. It began by reviewing the latest epidemiological data, including infection rates, variants of concern, and vaccination efforts worldwide.

The webinar discussed the multifaceted challenges posed by COVID-19, ranging from public health concerns to socio-economic impacts and global governance issues. It explored the complexities of vaccine distribution and access, highlighting disparities between countries and underserved populations. Furthermore, the session addressed the evolving nature of the pandemic, considering the potential for future waves, emerging variants, and the need for ongoing surveillance and response mechanisms.

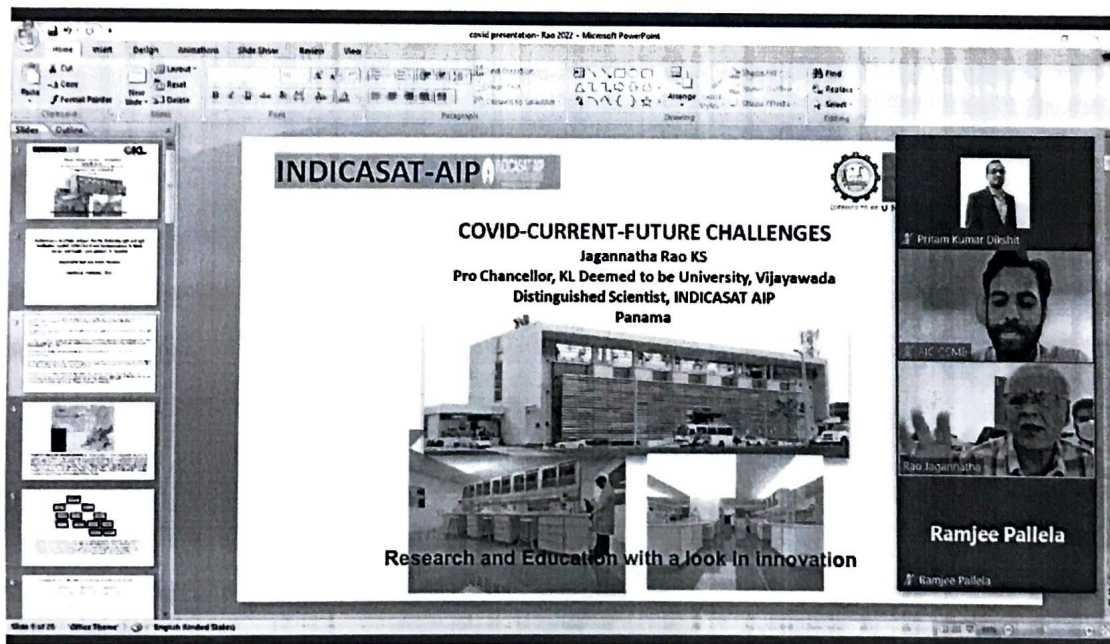

Speakers emphasized the importance of collaborative efforts among governments, international organizations, healthcare systems, and communities in tackling the pandemic effectively. They also discussed the role of science communication, public trust, and behavioral interventions in promoting adherence to public health measures and combating misinformation.

In conclusion, the webinar underscored the urgent need for continued vigilance, resilience, and innovation in addressing the COVID-19 pandemic's current challenges and preparing for future scenarios. It highlighted the importance of adaptability, equity, and solidarity in navigating this unprecedented global health crisis.

Outcome of the event

The students can use this knowledge for their experiments and project works.
