University Publications

KL University publishes an international journal titled International Journal of Systems and Technologies (IJST) (ISSN 0974-2107). Started as half-yearly online periodical in 2008, the contents of the peer-reviewed journal are openly accessible to researchers, educators, peers and the general public. IJST encourages researchers with creative ideas to publish original, innovative articles in the areas of systems and technology. Latest developments in all the fields of engineering science and technology are covered by the journal.

Many departments publish newsletters and bulletins on their home pages in the KL University website. These are brought out three to four times a year covering activities; special lectures arranged; workshops and seminars organized; skill development programmes conducted; placements; and research publications by the faculty and researchers of the department.

In addition, KL University brings out quite a few publications including conference papers and proceedings. Many engineering departments bring out Fresher's Handbooks for the benefit of freshers joining the University. These booklets contain rules, regulations, course details, academic calendar, merit scholarships, course coordinators, course structure, course syllabi with prescribed text books and reference books, and other useful information. Also many departments bring out guide books for the students for reference purpose only.
