Essay Writing Literary Event Cultural Traditional related.

Now-a-days as technology increasing in IT sector it has become a great deal in social networking sites especially Facebook , Twitter and Youtube. As there are many bad posts and comments regarding politicians which are kept by youth for their illegal activities in popular sites for which the politicians are showing their hatred towards youth by giving imprisonment for which The Supreme Court is expected to deliver a verdict today on the validity of Section 66 A of Information and Technology Act 2000. The Section gives the police powers to arrest those who post objectionable content online and provides for a three-year jail term.

Body:

Internet has been the most useful technology of modern times not only in daily life but also personal life. Most of the information regarding any kind of news are passed very fastly and effectively through internet. It plays a crucial role in public media. The lawyers of the petitioners had argued that the definition of provision Section 66 A - material that is grossly menacing, offensive and cause annoyance to public is vague and it may lead to abuse of the provision. They also argued that even genuine comments criticising a person, and caricatures, are treated as offence and people are harassed. For an example an recent incident happen in which the petition was filed in aftermath of arrest of two teenagers in Mumbai. They were let off after the arrests provoked nationwide outrage and shifted the focus on the IT laws. It was also alleged that the local police were misusing the laws at the behest of politicians. After a few more similar arrests, the Union home ministry issued a directive to all state governments that arrests under Section 66 A can only be made with the approval of senior police officers. Most of the youth who are posting their status, cartoons and images badly were arrested which were done by politicians. Hence youth of india fought for their rights against the silencing Act 66 A in supreme court making the politicians to move in right path.

Conclusion:

The basic premise of the law is to ensure that no innocent man gets punished, even if it means letting go a 100 guilty ones. The law seeks to minimize false positives. India is a democracy. And one of its basic pillars is the right to freedom of speech and expression. And you cannot uphold that right if people are constantly afraid of voicing their opinions, sending out mails, tweeting or blogging.
